

Georgia Hispanic Chamber launches CEO search

The Georgia Hispanic Chamber of Commerce has launched its search for a new chief executive officer.

The chamber is looking for a forward-thinking executive to be a champion and leader of the Hispanic business community as it continues to grow in prominence and impact. The new CEO will be responsible for building and expanding the chamber's influence, supporting the needs of its stakeholders and the business community of which it serves, while delivering on the chamber's funding requirements to meet its growth objectives.

Georgia has a population of over 1 million Hispanics statewide — the 9th largest Latino population in the United States — and one that continues to grow rapidly. For the seventh year in a row, Georgia has been named the "Top State for Doing Business" by Area Development, a national executive publication.

"This is an exciting time for the GHCC and Atlanta as we focus on identifying an inspiring, innovative and future-focused leader who will elevate our chamber's rich history and influence for the empowerment of Hispanic businesses as well as the overall Georgia business community," said Ivan Shammass, Chairman of the GHCC Board of Directors and General Manager of Telemundo Atlanta.

To lead its search, the GHCC has hired The Koblentz Group to work with the board appointed Search Committee to qualify candidates and find the right leader. All inquiries for the CEO position can be directed to Jeff Neppi, Partner at The Koblentz Group at jneppi@koblentzgroup.com.

About the GHCC

Established in 1984, the GHCC is focused on advancing business formation, growth, and economic impact for Hispanics statewide through access to resources, education, and programming, as well as serving as an advocate for the community in all areas of business and government.
